3. About the program

3.1 Aim

The main aim of this event was to help undergraduate students choose an offbeat career field in science that is in tune with their skills and their job expectations.

3.2 Objectives

To create awareness among students regarding some offbeat career options in field of science

- To encourage students, explore the field of science illustration
- To give a roadmap for pursuing publishing as a career option after under graduation
- To clear various doubts of students regarding career options after graduation

3.3 Content of webinar

The department of zoology, Sri Venkateswara college organised a webinar on "Taking the road less travelled: Exploring the journey of offbeat career options in science" on August 8, 2022. The webinar was conducted on the zoom platform from 12pm to 2 pm. It was organised by professors of the zoology department, Dr. Richa Misra and Dr. Namita Nayyar. There are 5 students of the department, Anshita, Srianshu, Nishita, Anuvrinda, Shaliini who are volunteers of the event. The webinar was basically for undergraduate students who are in their career deciding years now. Dr. Ipsa Jain, science illustrator and educator faculty, Srishti Manipal Institute of art, design and technology and Ms. Ranjana Sharma, content development manager, were the resource persons for the webinar.

The session began at 12 pm with welcoming of the speakers and audiences. A brief Introduction about speakers was given by the organisers of the event. After that the first speaker Dr. Ipsa jain was invited for her talk. In her talk she shared her journey from a science researcher to a science illustrator. She very well explained about the skills needed to become an illustrator. She shared her experiences of working at various institutes and motivated students to opt for such an artistic career in science. After her talk many questions were asked by students which she answered very skilfully and cleared all the doubts of students about this offbeat career option. After that the other speaker for the day Ms. Ranjana Sharma was invited. She explained about the various jobs available in publication companies for graduate students. She also told students about the publications which offer internships to undergraduate students and mentioned the monetary aspects of this career option. After her talk again a question-and-answer session was held to clear doubts of students and she very patiently explained everything to students and inspired them to be a content developer in the field of science.

About 70 students attended this webinar. Overall, the webinar was very informative and interactive. The students were happy to listen to both the speakers. A feedback form was circulated among students to further help them out. The session was concluded with the vote of thanks by the organisers of the webinar.

4. Short introduction of speakers

4.1 DR. IPSA JAIN

She is a molecular biologist by training. After early training in zoology, she pursued a PhD in Molecular Oncology at the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore. She recently published a science, illustrated, popular science book on concepts from animal coloration named- 'Actually, Colour speaks'. She is a science illustrator who brought her background as a biologist to the world of visual communication and scientific storytelling. After earning her PhD at the Indian Institute of Science in Bangalore, she did a postdoc where she transitioned to science communication by creating a book on the science of colour and colour-changing animals. She currently does freelance science communication and illustration under her own brand, Ipsawonders.

4.2 MS. RANJANA SHARMA

She holds a Master's degree in the Life Sciences. She has been working in the publishing industry for over 7 years. She started her career interning for Pearson publication and currently she is working at Elsevier. In her career journey so far She has worked on many books ranging from Science text books to medical journals. She is very passionate about creating high-quality, easily digestible content for learners. She is also a certified Instructional Designer and enjoys designing learning tools which are aligned with traditional and latest trends. She was also a university rank holder in Delhi University in her bachelor degree course. She has also given teacher training pan India empowering Science teachers to utilise the latest teaching trends in their classroom study. She has worked under some prominent companies like Pearson, Aptara, Cambridge University Press and Elsevier.
