College cleaning

The father of the nation Mahatma Gandhi had said that "Sanitation is more important than independence", so walking down his footsteps we began our cleanliness drive on 2nd August '18. Our entire team under the guidance of our respected principal mam took an oath that we'll whole heartedly work for "cleanliness and sanitation". Since that day we have been working enthusiastically for a change. As Change begins right from home, so we also started our journey from cleaning our college campus first. 2nd August-library and arts block were cleaned that too in college hours to give away the message to our fellowmates that they are not supposed to litter here and there. 3rd August-front lawns and science block were aimed and all laboratories along with classrooms were cleaned. 4th August-rock Garden, canteen and area near it were made litter free. The message of cleanliness is passed to each one of our fellowmates, teaching and non teaching staff as we are working on the ground zero level and setting up an example to others, it's ripple effect being there has been decline in the wastes thrown here and there. "Clean and green Venky"

HOSPITAL VISIT

12th August 2018

SVC NSS TEAM @ CHARAK PAIKA HOSPITAL

Yesterday, our college NSS team went to CP hospital at 11:00am to promote cleanliness awareness among the patients, hospital staff and the common people. NSS team were there at 11:00am to 12:00pm. Within one hour our team had communicated to lots of people and spread all the basic and vital information regarding cleanliness. There were lots of house wives and female care taker and patients who share their views and experiences regarding cleanliness. We suggested to them "Prevention is better than cure" and if we care few little bits things than it will be very helpful for a clean and healthy environment for everybody. Things that we need to do in rainy seasons are don't throw garbage here and there always throw it in the dustbin, always wear full armed and full pant shirt or clothes, do not allow water to collected in the pit, put the kerosene once in the cooler once a week or fortnight, etc. The aim was to achieve a clean and healthy environment for all the countryman, overall all the people were serious and sincere to communicate about cleanliness and we did our best to promote awareness among the people.

SATYA NIKETAN VISIT

ALL ABOUT 13/08/18

Satya Niketan, the prime location near the famous south campus colleges is the hotspot for all the students, outstation and otherwise. Students visit there for everything starting from a cup of tea to the most amazing delicacies.

But off late the place has been chaotic with construction work going on along with cleanliness problem which has subsequently led to water logging too.

We the students of SVC NSS, went to Satya-Niketan, to interact about the same with the student residents and some other locals.

While most people talked about the problems that they face on daily basis, some talked about the solutions that they can implement on their own level to reduce the problem. Some local shopkeepers even said that there was no problem. We believe that the problem of garbage disposal and water logging has been around for so long that the residents have become immune to it.

It is time that we take an initiative and solve the problems that the locals and students are facing because we are the youth and the responsibility of today and tomorrow is on our shoulders.

Satya Niketan is the students' hub and it shall better look the same rather than turning into a hippie's hub. We hope we bring in some change.

SLUM VISIT

14 Aug 2018

The students of NSS- Sri Venkateswara College, New Delhi visited the Pakiwaru Slums just next to the college campus on the afternoon of 14 August 2018. The students talked to people of various age groups, enquiring about various sanitation problems that they face on a daily basis. On being asked about how efficiently the government plays its part in maintaining cleanliness, they seemed satisfied with the work of the municipality. Most adults were of the opinion that until each person of the community doesn't contribute to the cleanliness and give up their callous behaviour, the government alone can't bring about a positive change. The students also sensitised the people about why maintaining personal as well as community hygiene is important through a series of charts and concluded by listing a number of ways that would help them achieve a cleaner living environment. It was only under the able and efficient guidance of Dr RK Yadav and Dr Y Ramkrishna that it appeared to all the students that a positive contribution was made and such programmes would be beneficial in the future.

"Clean and green Venky"

10th August 2018

The NSS wing of Sri Venkateswara College, University of Delhi that, with an attempt to jump out of the bandwagon, has been an ardent believer of 'change with continuity' and discarding the conventional idea of red letter days for action oriented goals that social service is often associated with. The newly college society- turned- NSS- wing had its first tryst with change in the form of the PM initiated 'Swachchh Bharat Abhiyan' framework that comprised of keeping under check the cleanliness within and outside their college premise, spreading awareness among the members from the community right adjacent to the college and going to public places for carrying out similar activities.

In the sweltering Delhi heat of 10th August, when almost everyone was in a haste to retire from the day's work, a bunch of 20 college students battling the heat, were heading towards the National Railway Museum in South Delhi. All armed with plastic hand- gloves, posters that screamed of the duties as a citizen and garbage bags that were later brimming with the sins of our asleep conscience, the students divided themselves into groups of 4 and spread in all directions. Usually, we find public spaces such as these to be highly maintained and supposedly clean. The scenario, however, was in stark contrast to the expectations with plastic bottles, aluminium foils, cartons and wrappers comprising of most of the garbage that these spaces manufacture. Beginning with the area in front of the Indoor Gallery to the nooks and corners of all the model trains that were stationed there, they collected garbage of all types from the tracts, dumping them in the bins, refilling and continuing with the process until they were interrupted by the incessant rainfall. In compensation to the work, the students got dispersed in the vast area of the museum as the rain subsided and began interacting with the visitors and the passers-by regarding cleanliness and what they understood of their roles.

The entire excursion/ fieldwork ended on a light note with the manager Gulab Singh of the museum. All in all, this was a great experience for the students and a two-way growth factor, wherein, both sides ended up learning quite something from one another. With that, we hope to grow this association expanding our network in near future as well.
