1. Event report Attested by Event Coordinator & IQAC Coordinator

The final Gender Sensitisation workshop of the Women's Development Cell commenced with the understanding of the prescriptive and limiting influences of the patriarchy on all genders. It was emphasised that feminism, being the opposite of sexism, is not a 'bad' word, and neither is the term 'radical.' Through intergenerational stigmas, which function under the guise of a moralistic dichotomy of good or bad, preconceived notions are established that enforce gender norms. It was noted that sexism against men, primarily comes from other men wherein insults are about their emasculation when they exhibit any form of behaviour that is softer and not aggressive.

Students attending the seminar

Furthermore, the role of Bollywood in popularising misogynistic and sexist conceptions was talked about at length. Scenes, where the heroine faces violence from the actions of the hero, are glorified, and it further cements the idea that women 'crave attention,' and their 'yes' means 'no,'. Another idea that gets relayed is that despite humiliating and violent actions towards them, women 'fall in love' with those very men who are the perpetrators of the violence. Attendees of the session were also encouraged to refrain from making transphobic and gender insensitive remarks directed against non-binary or gender non-conforming persons.

Dr Rina Ramdev explaining how sexist meme culture is

In the one-on-one discussion between Professor Rina and the attendees, a variety of issues were brought to light again. The film, 'Tere Naam' and its dangerous sexist implications, comparing one form of abuse to another and gaslighting the victim, and refusal to conform to norms upheld by elders were some personal experiences shared.

Faculty members and students attending the seminar

A Professor pointed out that gender is a social construct and attributes of it are performed quoting Simone de Beauvoir's statement, "One is not born a woman but rather becomes a woman".
