SPONSOR SESSION

CAREER OPTIONS IN THE USA

5 MARCH 2020

A.S.C.E.N.D hosted Ms. Oksana Carlson, the Assistant Dean of Global Collaborations at The John Hopkins University, to conduct an informative talk about the various sprouting courses outside of a regular MBA. Whether entrepreneurship and other practical fields can be taught in a classroom or not, remains an unanswered question. However, networking through established courses and leading business schools remains a fascinating next step for college students.

The speaker introduced the audience to the wide disparity in labour supply-demand and the rising need for qualified personnel in fields of FinTech, STEM based courses and many others. This session was held in partnership with T.I.M.E.
