This underscored the need for men's active participation in dismantling patriarchal systems and promoting equality, which is often absent in gender movements. 4. Brief Report:

On 6th September, 2024, the Women Development Cell, SVC organised a session on 'gender sensitization' that took place in the seminar hall, Durgabai Deshmukh block and commenced at 2pm. Our esteemed speaker, Mr Harish Sadani is the co-founder of MAVA- Men against violence and abuse, a registered organisation which has been working to address gender-based violence and discrimination against women since 1993.

The speaker opened the discussion by addressing important and sensitive topics, such as gender-based violence and victim-blaming, particularly in light of the recent Kolkata rape case. He delved on the importance of recognition of three genders and understanding the opposite gender and discussed topics like male dominance, patriarchy, and gender stereotyping, highlighting the negative portrayal of women in Bollywood movies. He criticised the use of problematic phrases that strip people of accountability and toxic masculinity and explored how such depictions influence young boys, emphasising the necessity to include men and boys in important dialogues regarding gender sensitivity, sexuality and gender equality.

MAVA's strategies, thus, seek to address the absence of men in gender equality movements. Focusing on engaging men and boys in these conversations, offering them a safe space to learn, unlearn, and reflect, while also organising various programs, workshops, and initiatives to advance the cause.
