REPORT

The educational trip organized for 22 students and 3 faculty members by the Biochemistry Department of Sri Venkateswara College, New Delhi to the School of Health Sciences and Technology, University of Petroleum and Energy Studies (UPES), Dehradun, turned out to be a perfect blend of learning, adventure, and scenic exploration. The four-day journey offered not only valuable academic exposure but also unforgettable experiences amidst the natural beauty of Uttarakhand.

On 30th October, the trip began early in the morning, reaching Rishikesh, a serene town on the banks of the Ganga. The stay at Rishikesh was arranged at a beautiful riverside campsite, surrounded by lush green hills and the soothing sound of flowing water.

During the day, the students participated in various camp activities that built teamwork and enthusiasm. As night fell, everyone gathered around a bonfire, shared stories, enjoyed music, and admired the starlit sky, making it a memorable start to our journey.

Visit to UPES, Dehradun

On the 31st of October, the students and faculty members arrived at UPES, Dehradun. The day's itinerary was a sequential, minute-to-minute program beginning with a reception at the campus and a welcome session led by Dr. Dhruv Kumar and Prof. Padma Venkat. This was followed by a tea break, which provided an opportunity for the faculty and students to interact and learn about the various facilities on campus, as well as the courses offered at the undergraduate, postgraduate, and doctoral levels.

Next, the group proceeded to the School of Health Sciences and Technology (SoHST), where they were introduced to various laboratories, including the C. elegans Lab, Zebrafish (Danio rerio) Lab, Drosophila Lab, and Cell Culture Lab. The students were then enlightened about the equipment and its functionality in each lab, which sparked their curiosity about various research methodologies. Learning about the ongoing research in these labs helped the students consider their own research interests and expand their horizons beyond their standard coursework.

After a short lunch break, the visit continued with a tour of other campus facilities, such as the Animal House and the Central Instrumentation Centre (CIC). At the Animal House, students were shown the model organism, Wistar Rats, and learned about their feeding, maintenance and experimental setup for research purposes. The visit was highly informative for all attendees, introducing new concepts, laboratory strategies, tools, and techniques, while also making them aware of the associated ethical and legal norms. The day concluded with
